Research, analytical design, and plan-making techniques in urban and regional planning. Examines basic items necessary to prepare urban and regional comprehensive plans.

2. Current Catalog Description:

Research, analytical design, and plan-making techniques in urban and regional planning. Examines basic items necessary to prepare urban and regional comprehensive plans. (Also offered as GEOG 352; may not be taken for duplicate credit)

3. Listing of Proposed Changes

- The GEOG crosslisted course – GEOG 352 Planning Methods – is being removed, so that only RGPL 352 Planning Methods will be offered.
- Drop the last line in the catalog description that references the crosslisted course.

4. Rationale for Changes

The rationale for removing the crosslisting is that the Department's external consultant for the Regional Planning program feels that the program contains too many cross-listed courses (creating
